We dearly love our old friends. We have be the sharers of a common sentiment, and are now the subjects of a common misfortune. Our hopes, spirations, interests and sympathics are the me. We hope never to lose their good will and generous support. We are laboring in their in-terests, and for the maintenance of their honor. It would be painful for us to separate with any part of them. Old ties are the most lasting. Nevertheless, necessity requires that we shall conform strictly to our terms. When you see the M mark on your paper you must renew, or expect it to be discontinued. We would be glad to send it to you gratuitously, if we could, but that is impossible You say that money is scarce this is true-but it is a penny wise and pound foolish sconomy to deprive yourself and family of the many advantage of a newspaper, to say nothing of the satisfacti Our market advices, financial and mmercial review, current news, latest intelligence by telegraph and mail, agricultural advices teresting miscellaneous and literary matter for the family circle, is something you cannot dispensa with merely to save the small price of subscription. THE CITY.

A city local informs us that the negro woman who was so indiscreet as to share her sleeping apartments with Duggan on Thurs-day night, was arraigned before the Freed-men's Court on Friday, and was required to pay fine of five dollars and all costs. have no sort of doubt that it is the desire of the Freedmen's Court to guard the innocence and protect the virtue of our negro friends ut it is certain that she was not so much to blame. When so conspicuous a "friend and brother" as Daggan approaches them with the honied words of friendship, the seducing eloquence so much displayed by Radical legislators, and the generosity of financia contributions, such as Duggan proposed, it is not strange that one of the "down-trodden especially one of them that realizes her daily read "in that way," should fall before the temptation. The Court ought to refund the money to Dinah; or if the Court doesn't, Duggan ought to. However, not wishing to question the justice of the Court, we may say, that upon a different view, it decided Any negro wench who would prostitute herself to such a being as Duggan, ght to be puni shed.

ONE of the most timely enterprises of the day is the Tennessee Live Stock Insurance Company. The design and plan of this Company is fully set forth in their advertisement in our columns, to which we espe cially direct the attention of the reade The insurance against the larceny of live stock has been a great desideratum in this country since the war closed, and would have saved our farmers in the aggregate many thousands of dollars. But there is another feature that is especially noticea-ble. It is the system which it inaugurates of pursuing and catching horse-thieves respect it becomes a general public benefactor. It exerts a power and subserves a purpose, which the ordinary ower of the law and its agents have failed to exert. It comes in aid of the law in the protection of the citizen in his property. Its very existence will doter thieves and prever many a man from losing his stock which might otherwise be stolen. It should be supported and sustained by all who feel any terest in the moral and pecuniary interest of the country. It will commend itself at once to the favor of our people, we feel sure; and it is entitled to their confidence, since it is a home institution, its officers and stock-

SHOCKING MURDER.-A negro woman named Ann Towles, was discovered yesterday morning in a pond near the Race Course, brutally murdered. Her skull had been crushed, and a rail or fence picket found near by with blood upon it, evidently show-ing that it was the impliment used in the deed. At the time of her death she was employed as a servant by Gen. Donelson, Chief Quartermaster for this Military Department. The police force were notified of the matter and their investigations resulted as follows: The deceased had for some time had an engagement of marriage with a ne-gro man named Nelson Wright, who delayed consummation as she thought unneces sarily-the two in the meantime living in the most intimate relations. On Thursday night they quarreled upon the subject, she insisting on his complying with his engagement. The result of this altercation was that he agreed to pay her one hundred dollars, for which he gave his note payable on the first of May, and the engagement was to be at an end. The next day she was missing, and was found yesterday as above stated. These, together with some other circumstances, led to the arrest of Nelson, which was done by policemen Davidson and McKinney, vesterday. He is in custody awaiting a trial.

THE ELECTION YESTERDAY.-The returns up the hour of going to press, are of such a meagre character as to render it extremely doubtful as to who are the successful candidates. We defer publishing the state of the polls until we can fur aish our readers with the complete returns. "Mr. SPEAKER: In justification of my action in itering a protest against the confirmation of one the Directors of the Bank of Tennessee, I re-setfully ask that the following statement be gread upon the journal of the Senate: If, as ated by the relect committee, the effice of sctor is not a "lucrative office," then the ques solver itself into a legal one, and must be ormined by the courts of the State. The Legature has the power to enset a law, but as no right, under the Constitution, to decihas no right, under the Constitution, to decid by a select committee upon the anconstitutional ity of its own acts. Admitting that the office of Bank Director, under the provisions of the bank charter, is not a lucrative office, the duties of said office are more onerous and more reprehensible than ever before; and, as certain as there is honor or integrity in the next Legislature, a componsa-tion for services rendered in liquidating the bank, will be given. Again, there is no evidence before the committee of the Senate, that this gentleman will not be made President of the Bank, for he is undoubtedly eligible to the office, under the pro-visions of that bill. The World's Washington special says: Sir Frederick Bruce, the British Minister, was yesterday in conference with several members of the Ways and Means Committee, in regard to the re procity treaty recently reported by them. He informed the Committee that he would like to get some additional articles in the free list and a little lower duty on certain other articles. It is understood that the provisions of the bill are nearly what they desire. It will be opposed by members from the East and most of the Central States on the ground that it is wholly unfair in its provisions, and affords scarcely any protection to American interests. Canadians are here in full force, with a few seedy lobby members, who urge its passage at once, on the plea that something must be done before the old treaty expires. Gen. CONGRESSIONAL. WASHINGTON, March 3 .- House-The House sat n Committee of the Whole on the President's message. A general debate was the only thing in There was not a score of members in the hall while the Journal was being read, and the audience in the galleries was correspondingly slim. No sort of interest was taken in the proceedings. Among the reports of a private character made yesterday, was one by Mr. Washburn of Massachusetts, from the Committee on Claims, reporting adversely on forty petitions for damages arising from raids made in July, 1864, by the rebels in the vicinity of Fort Stevens, near Washngton, and an adverse report by Mr. Sloan, from ommittee on the House bill to provide for epting and adjusting the claims against the lovernment for the injury or destruction of property by the armies of the United States or by military authorities during the late rebellion. Mr. McKee, of Kentucky, proceeded to address the House at length in support of the amendment o the Constitution, which was introduced on the th of February, and which had been referred to he Judiciary Committee, providing that no person shall be qualified to hold the office of Presilent or Vice President of the United States, or of Senator or Representative in the National Congress, or any office held under the appointment of the President, who had held office, civil or military, under the late Confederacy, or who had voluntarily aided the rebellion, or who should hereafter be guilty of a similar offense.

Mr. McKee, in condemning the policy of the President, asked by what power he imposed an oath upon voters at elections; by what authority did he say to the Legislature of a sovereign State "You must ratify the Constitutional amendment before we accept you as being in proper relations to the Union over which I preside." On what law lid he proceed to order a convention to remodel he Constitution of a State, which had never lost s power, and then say to that convention: "You nust repudiate your debts and abolish slavery, before you resume your place in the Union." Mr. McKee said he made no war upon the President for these acts; they were questions for his newly acquired supporters to consider for themselves, dec7-6m out that he (McKee) would sooner the most costly A. J. DUNCAN, ewel of the earth, if placed on his head by one who had plucked it from the crown in which it had been set. Mr. McKee said that it was by the law the President had exercised these powers. These were matters which the represenpowers. These were matters which the represen-tatives of the people in the national Congress had the right to pass upon. It belonged to them to etermine when and how the rebel States should sume their proper relations in the Union. Mr. McKee's speech was principally directed to a criticism of the President's policy. In the same tone he advocated the adoption of the proposed mendment as a proper punishment to the rebels, making them infamous in the eyes of the law, and utting the legal stamp of condemnation upor Mr. Sloan next addressed the House and argued that the union of States and existence of the nation were very distinct things. The union of tates might be destroyed without affecting the existence of the nation. When the eleven South era States entered into rebellion and inaugurated nivil war, the union of States was de facto dissolved just as much as if the rebels had proved victorious and had had their independence ac knowledged. They held no political position nee their revolt except that of rebellious subects. He contended that they should not be retored to their former Constitution in the Union until the political power in those States was con ined exclusively in the hands of loyal perso Equal rights and privileges were extended to of hatred to rebellion and love of the republic, until rehe! sentiments, rebel genero's, rebel bands and rebel troops were repudiated, and until love of justice law and order was so firmly established in the minds of the people as to give unquestion able assurance of enduring peace; then, but not before, would be vote to readmit them into the Mr. Thorn, of Illinois, next addressed the House. The Government question to be settled was in one view a question of union or disunion. and in another view a question of a centralized despotism or A National Government with delegated powers, consisting of States.
